BERLIN ADMITS GAINS BY THE ALLIES IN CHAMPAGNE AND ARTOIS BATTLES

Capture 20,000 in Trenches;

Great Drive Still Unchecked

Berlin, Sept. 26.-The official communication issued by the War Office to-night says:

The battles in the continuation of the British and French offensive, which had been prepared for for months, have progressed without bring their fire, especially on Zeebrugge, but without result. In the sector of Ypres the enemy suffered heavy losses and had no divisions near Loos from its advance line of defence to its second line. Naturally, we had considerable losses, including material of all kinds inclosed between the two positions. A counter attack is progressing

We voluntarily evacuated the ruins of the village of Souchez. Other attacks on this front were easily repulsed, at several points with the

The 39th Regiment of Landwehr especially distinguished itself.

In the struggles between Rheims and the Argonne, north of Perthes, one German division was obliged to evacuate its advanced position by a hombardment for seventy hours and retire to its second position, situated from two to three kilometres (1.24 to 1.86 miles) behind the first.

The last obstacle in the way of an agreement with the Eastern bankers is understood to have been reached at a meeting in the Morgan library late Saturday. None of the Anglo-French mission was there, the conference being wholly of leading Eastern bankers and members of the Morgan firm. It is believed that they received word from the mission at that time that the British and French governments had accepted the terms of the American bankers as submitted to them by the mission.
